Revision of Curriculum "Enlightening"

BY BILL GALVIN

Anyone would think that BE 112 plays host to a class of debaters every afternoon from 1 to 3. But the truth is that those loud noises coming from the classroom in the Education building are from the Curriculum Workshop settling problems which they—er—don't agree on.

The course is organized as the Curriculum Revision Center for Montana secondary school courses and deals with the preparation of tentative study guides for use in Montana high schools. The first study guides were drawn up in 1932 and in 1944 and '45 were revised by a group working on the MSU campus.

Quite an Experience

This present session of the Curriculum Workshop has been divided into four groups: science, social studies, music, and math. Thus when 15 students, who are teachers, principals, supervisors, and superintendents, get together in their respective groups their in-

Dean T. H. Smith To New York On Fellowship

Dean Theodore H. Smith of the School of Business Administration has been selected for one of 10 fellowships offered in the nation this year to provide three weeks' study of the daily operations of the New York financial center. He will be in New York from July 28 to August 15.

The fellowships were offered by a joint committee on education of the American securities business, representing the Association of Stock Exchange Firms, Investment Bankers association, National Association of Securities Dealers, New York Curb Exchange, and New York Stock Exchange.

They are set up to give American educators first-hand knowledge of the workings of great financial centers, and are expected to result in research and interchange of ideas benefiting both the securities business and the nation's colleges.

The fellowship will permit Dean Smith to watch day-to-day operation of the various departments of the New York Stock and Curb exchanges and the different types of security firms and talk with and question officers.

Educational Conference Starts; Features Six General Sessions

More than 330 school superintendents, principals, supervisors, teachers and lay leaders had registered for the annual Montana Educational Problems conference by 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The three day conference started yesterday.

A schoolmasters' luncheon starts at noon today in the Bitterroot room of the Student Union, in which the speaker will be Daniel Chubbuck, Willimatic, Conn.

This morning the third general session got underway with the theme "A Look at Safety Education." The fourth general session will start at 2 this afternoon in the Gold room of the Student Union with the theme "The Community Looks at Education." There will be an exhibit open from 1 to 2 in the Gold room and an exhibitors' all-conference banquet at 6 this evening in the Empress room of the Palace hotel.

Yesterday's program featured the first general session in the morning, an elementary principals' luncheon at noon, an exhibit in the Gold room at 1, and the second general session at 2 which had as its theme "A Look at the Reading Program."

The conference will wind up tomorrow with a fifth general session at 9 in the morning on the theme "A Look at School Organization and Administration," followed at 1:30 in the afternoon with the sixth and final session consisting of a panel, and "Open Season" on participants—audience at 2:30.

Conference personnel from Montana include Miss Mary Condon, state superintendent of public instruction, Helena; Mr. William E. Feldmann, assistant to secretary, Elementary School Safety council, Missoula; Mr. M. C. Gallagher, superintendent of schools, Billings; Mr. J. C. Garlington, attorney, school board member, Missoula; Mr. Charles Hertler, chairman, department of health and physical education, MSU, Missoula; Miss Genevieve Squires, deputy superintendent of public instruction, Helena; and Captain Bodley B. Vacura, safety director, Montana highway patrol, Helena.

From out-of-state come 12 conference resource personnel. Mr. John M. Booth, president, Boise junior college, and executive secretary, Idaho Education association, Boise, Idaho; Mr. Leeds R. Lacy, regional director, national citizens commission for the public schools, Denver, Colo.; Dr. Ernest G. Lake, superintendent of schools, Racine, Wis.; Dr. Erich Selke, professor of education, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. D.

Dr. Donald E. Tope, director, pacific northwest cooperative project in educational administration, Eugene, Ore.; Miss Miriam Bennee, Columbia university, New York, N. Y.; Dr. Helen M. Bishop, school psychologist, St. Paul, Minn.; Dr. R. Daniel Chubbuck, superintendent of schools, state department of education, Willimatic, Conn.

Dr. Max Klingbeil, professor of education, Central Washington college of education, Ellensburg, Wash.; Dr. Floyd I. Marchus, director of research, county superintendent of schools office, Martinez, Calif.; Mr. John Urlaub, consultant in driver education, American Automobile association, Berkeley, Calif.; and Mr. Frank J. Watson, assistant headmaster and director of guidance, Kennett high school, Conway, N. H.

CRAFTS ON EXHIBIT—Shown above are some of the crafts now on exhibit in the Fine Arts auditorium. The exhibit will be up for a couple more weeks and is open to everyone. The various crafts exhibited are weaving, ceramics, jewelry, and enameling. They were chosen for being examples of modern design. Most of the work is by professionals, all of Montana, with the exception of a mobile design by George Richey of the University of Indiana.

A Serious Charge . . .

Democrats have long complained that the Republicans have received the most favorable coverage in American newspapers, not only in the editorial section but on the news pages, under the guise of objective coverage.

This is a serious charge, and if evidence seems to show that it is true, then the press is guilty of betraying the traditional trust that Americans have had in their newspapers. Most voters base their opinions on facts that they get from newspapers. If the material that is presented to these voters by these papers is false, or slanted, then the decisions that these voters make that are based on these "facts" are bound to be wrong.

When General Eisenhower returned to the United States from Europe to campaign for the Republican nomination for President, he received a great deal of coverage by the newspapers, radio, television, and magazines. His opponent for the Republican candidacy, Senator Taft, knew that Eisenhower would get very extensive coverage by the press in his opening campaign speech at Abilene, Kansas, and demanded equal press coverage for another speech that Taft was prepared to make.

Senator Kefauver, who was leading the Democratic primary race at that time also joined with Taft in demanding equal coverage. As it turned out, neither of these candidates ever received equal emphasis in any of their speeches, and Eisenhower subsequently won the Republican nomination at Chicago.

It is impossible to measure the total effect of the larger concentration of coverage of Eisenhower's speech. It is obvious that he did receive the most space of any candidate in any one campaign speech.—N.W.

Brooks Life Work a Study Of American Authors, Writing

"Van Wyck Brooks' life work has been the study of American authors and American writing," said Henry V. Larom, director of the Writers conference, "and he has promised to discuss these problems with us, using his new, as yet unpublished, manuscript as a point of departure. He will serve on several of our panels and workshops in the fields of non-fiction, biography, and criticism."

Mr. Brooks is one of the eight lecturers and panelists of the staff for the fourth annual Writers' conference, which will run from July 30 through Aug. 8.

Mr. Brooks was awarded the gold medal of the National Institutes of Arts and Letters in 1944 for his work in the field of essays and criticism. This award is made only once every 10 years.

Making up the rest of the staff for the conference will be David Davidson, Leslie A. Fiedler, Peggy Simpson Curry, Dorothy M. Johnson, Dale White, Norman A. Fox, and Henry V. Larom.

David Davidson, novel and short story writer, is one of the best-known of the post-World War II novelists, and is the author of "The Steeper Cliff," Fiction Book club selection, "The Hour of Truth," Fiction Book club selection, and "In Another Country."

Peggy Simpson Curry, novel and light verse, is a poet, short story writer and novelist, whose first novel, "Fire in the Water," was a $25,000 Doubleday Book club selection in 1951.

Fiedler to Return

Leslie A. Fiedler, poetry and short story, who has been on leave from MSU for more than a year under a Fulbright Fellowship, is a nationally known poet and critic, a frequent contributor to Kenyon Review, Partisan Review, Commentary, and other magazines.

Dorothy M. Johnson, magazine fiction and marketing, was formerly editor of The Woman, and is now news editor of the Whitefish Pilot. She has published in such magazines as the Saturday Evening Post, Colliers, Cosmopolitan, and Seventeen.

Dale White, magazine non-fiction, has sold more than 200 articles to such magazines as Colliers, Field and Stream, American Home, Family Circle, Outdoor Life, and Flying Age.

Norman A. Fox, western fiction, has published 21 books. His novel, "Roughshod," has recently been purchased by Universal-International motion picture corporation. His stories have appeared in Colliers, Cosmopolitan, and Blue Book.

Henry V. Larom, juveniles, is the author of "Mountain Pony," "Mountain Pony and the Pinto Colt," which won a Boy's Club of America award in 1949, "Bronco Charlie," and other novels for young people.

Letters to Editor . .

LOOK WHO'S ALL WET!

Dear Editor:

I don't doubt that the lawns about the campus must be watered to remain green, but must the students be watered too? We don't want to be green and we don't want to be wet either.

One student was sprayed through his car window recently, and his upholstery as well as his suit were quite damp. The sidewalk as well as the lawns get a complete watering. This not only wastes water but it also makes the ground wet and slippery.

The men working on the sprinklers should take us poor students into consideration. Water is fine and cool in its proper place, but it is most unpleasant to venture to class, only to have my dress splattered with water from the sprinklers indiscriminately placed.

Fulbright Grants For 800 Students

Opportunities for approximately 800 Americans to undertake graduate study or research abroad during the 1953-54 academic year under the terms of the Fulbright act were announced today by the Department of State. Countries in which study grants are available are Australia, Austria, Belgium, Burma, Denmark, Egypt, France, Greece, India, Iran, Iraq, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, the Union of South Africa and the United Kingdom.

The awards will enable students in all fields of graduate work and those with specialized research projects to study in foreign institutions and universities under renowned professors and specialists. Grants also are available to students with records of accomplishment in such fields as music, art, architecture, and drama. A few opportunities in workers' education and social work are provided in the United Kingdom.

The grants are made under Public Law 584, 79th Congress, the Fulbright act, which authorizes the Department of State to use certain foreign currencies and credits acquired through the sale of surplus property abroad for programs of educational exchange with other nations. Grants are made for one academic year and generally include round trip transportation, tuition, a living allowance and a small amount for necessary books and equipment. All grants under the act are made in foreign currencies.

Interested students presently enrolled in MSU should request application forms from Dean H. J. Wunderlich, Room 104, Main hall, Fulbright adviser. The closing date for receipt of applications by the Fulbright adviser is Oct. 31.

Persons not enrolled in a college or university in the spring or fall of 1952 should direct inquiries and requests for applications to the

Eliot, Baker To Teach Coach-School

The 1952 coaching school will get underway Monday in the Men's gym. Teachers at this intensive school will be Ray Eliot of the University of Illinois, Cecil Baker, head basketball coach at Utah State college, and Roland "Kickapoo" Logan, Los Angeles, who will teach training techniques.

The week-long school will instruct Montana coaches in basketball and football techniques and training practices, with special emphasis on high school coaching and training.

The daily morning and afternoon sessions of the coaching school will include lectures and demonstrations of coaching techniques and the development of offensive and defensive strategy.

Ray Eliot, for 10 years head football coach at University of Illinois, will give the coach-students tips he has used in grooming the hard-hitting and spirited teams of the Illini for the past decade. Eliot is considered one of the foremost coaches in the nation today.

The knowledge gained through nearly a quarter of a century of basketball coaching will be background from which Cecil Baker, mentor of the Utah Aggies, will draw during the coaching school. Baker is considered one of the outstanding coaches in the west because of his aggressive and hard-working coaching techniques.

"Kickapoo" Logan will give Montana high school mentors the benefit of his many years of training techniques. He has been trainer for such great athletes as Glenn Cunningham, James Bausch, Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Marshall Goldberg, "Tuffy" Leemans, Harry Stella and many others. "Kickapoo" is the only trainer to condition two Sullivan award winners.

Institute of International Education, U. S. Student Program, 1 East 67th street, New York 21, N. Y. The last date on which applications will be issued by the institute is Oct. 15.

Also participating in the program will be Naseby Rhinehart, trainer at Montana State University for many years who is considered one of the top trainers in the Northwest.

Registration for the school will begin at 8 Monday morning and at 10 lectures will start with a basketball lecture by Baker followed in the afternoon by a football lecture by Eliot.

Logan will give his first training lecture at 11, Tuesday morning.

Throughout the week the coach-students will have a chance to view movies of the big football and basketball games throughout the nation during 1951-52. Outstanding of these will be a film of the 1952 Rose Bowl game.

College credit can be obtained for the course if desired by enrolling in Advanced Coaching Techniques, H&PE-S58.

COFFEE AT NEW HALL

New hall has invited the men of North hall to a coffee hour tonight from 9 to 10 p.m.

The affair will be held in the New hall lounge and is strictly informal.

PRACTICING UP—George Shrum, Buffalo, Wyo., doesn't have time for a fishing trip during the week, but he manages to find time for a few practice casts into a small pail of water. The fish had better watch out for him on week ends.

Revision of Curriculum

dividual ideas and theories are expressed in informal, and sometimes noisy, discussions. However, Harry Mikelson, principal of the high school in Sidney, Montana, says, "This is the most enlightening experience I have had in a long time. Enlightening in the sense of enjoying other's opinions."

The results of this sessions revision work will be published in the fall and sent to the high schools in Montana.

Alive to the Needs

The study guides will contain suggestions for revising courses to make them more interesting to students and teachers alike. There is nothing compulsory about the suggestions the guide contains but as Mr. Watson, coordinator and editor of the final draft, says, "We hope the guide will help the high schools keep alive to the need of the times."

The workshop affords the individual the opportunity to work by himself and also with others in putting forth his ideas and plans for revision. When the students are not working by themselves, they are working in their groups or listening to one of the lectures Mr. Watson delivers as coordinator. As Mr. Michelson has said "most enlightening."

DOOR TO REPLACE WINDOW—Knocking out the above marked window and installing a new French door will get underway very soon to make it easier for students wishing to use the patio cafe outside the Student Union cafeteria. The door, which was ordered six weeks ago for delivery in 10 days, just arrived today. If the students seem to go for the outdoor eating, more tables will probably be added.

“Hasty Heart” Will Start Wednesday

The curtain will go up on John Patrick's “The Hasty Heart” Wednesday evening at 8:15 in Simpkins Little theater. Tickets for the production are available in the theater and all seats are reserved, selling for 80 cents each, tax included.

The show will be presented at 8:15 both Wednesday and Thursday evenings, July 23 and 24, according to Stanley K. Hamilton, university theater director.

The three-act comedy drama, which deals with a group of eight soldiers and a nurse during World War II, is a story of human relations during the war, Hamilton said.

The cast of nine includes Fred Carl, Buffalo, N. Y., “the orderly”; Duane Degh, Ogden, Utah, “Tommy”; Frank Rutherford, Helena, “Digger”; Tom Sherlock, Great Falls, “Yank”; Ray Stewart, Stanley, N. D., “Kiwi”; Bill Nye, Santa Barbara, Calif., “Lachlie”; C. A. Miles, Missoula, “the colonel”; L. W. Burlingame, Choteau, “Blossom”; and Alice Ann Buls, Missoula, “the nurse.”

The Real Low-Down on Fishing; Where and How to Catch Them

BY TED HEWETT

Having trouble catching fish? If so, better read on and get the latest word received from Les Colby, manager of the sports department of the Missoula Mercantile.

According to Colby, the five main fishing streams near Missoula are all pretty good right now for fly fishermen. Those are the Blackfoot, Rock creek, Bitterroot river, Fish creek, and the Jocko river.

This is the dry fly season now, Colby said, and it normally produces more than wet fly fishing. He said the best dry fly patterns seem to be the gray and blonde Wulf, the Joes' hopper, and the Loretta patterns.

In the wet flies, the Pott flies are the best patterns, with the Sandy and Lady Mites the most popular, Colby said.

The lake fishing has started to drop off, he said, with most of it confined to trolling for Sockeye salmon in Flathead lake. The best bait for this seems to be flatfish and the wobbling style lures, he said.

Colby said that in about a week, grasshoppers will be both available and the best bait to use. He said worms are only good for the very early part of the season during high water run-off, and that they are not very effective now.

Milburn Honored At Team Banquet

A former Montana State University coach was honored Friday by the men he shaped into a Grizzly football team 25 years ago.

Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, who will return to the campus this fall in both the athletic and administrative field, met the men he taught here 25 years ago, at a banquet in the Hotel Florence. Former MSU athletes from throughout the state and many parts of the nation came to Missoula for the banquet.

General Milburn was retired from the army in May after heading campaigns in World War II and the Korean conflict. He served under Generals MacArthur and Ridgway in Korea and was interim commander of ground forces there. Prior to his service career, the general coached at MSU from 1926 to 1931.

MSU President Carl McFarland and A. C. Cogswell, director of the Public Service division, spoke at the banquet and welcomed Gen. Milburn back to the University.

Montana Book Sold at Writer's Conference in '51

Mrs. Howard Place of Butte, who writes under the name of Dale White, and Larry Florek of Missoula have completed the sale of a Montana book tentatively called “Tall Timber Pilots” to the Viking Press, Mrs. Place has announced. “It is the story of the Johnson Flying service from the time when Bob Johnson flew his first open cockpit plane over the South Fork of the Flathead right up to the present time, with the growth of cargo flying, smoke jumping, spraying, aerial photography, and all the other developments of wilderness aviation,” Mrs. Place said.

Sold Store at Writers' Conference

Mrs. Place and Mr. Florek, a former Johnson pilot, worked together for a year gathering material, writing and re-writing until the final acceptance in June. “Larry and I made our original sale during the 1951 Montana State University Writers' conference,” Mrs. Place said. On the strength of two chapters and an outline, the book was sold to Mr. Keith Jennison, a Viking editor who was visiting the conference.

Mrs. Place, who has written hundreds of articles, many of them on the subject of wilderness flying, is on the staff of this summer's conference at the University, starting July 30. She will lecture and hold workshops in magazine non-fiction. Mr. Florek, a Johnson pilot for 11 years, is a pilot for the Union Construction company of Missoula.

Mangravite To Appear In Roundup

Peppino Mangravite, noted artist and head of Columbia University school of painting and sculpture, will take part in the Regional Arts Roundup on the MSU campus for one week this summer. H. V. Larom, roundup director, announced. Professor Mangravite will lecture, give demonstrations and offer both group and private criticisms from July 26 to Aug. 2.

Mr. Mangravite has won many prizes in exhibitions throughout the nation, Mr. Larom said, and his picture have been purchased by a number of galleries, including the Whitney museum, Corcoran gallery, Phillips Memorial gallery in Washington, the Chicago Art Institute, the art museums in Denver and Toledo, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Colorado Springs art center, and the Library of Congress.

A noted teacher, Mr. Mangravite has instructed at the Ethnical Culture schools and at Cooper Union in New York, has been head of the Colorado Springs art center, and instructor in mural painting at the Chicago art institute.

A believer in teaching through “creative design,” Mr. Mangravite not only will work with Montana and regional artists but also will talk on the general field of design, so that persons interested in crafts such as weaving, pottery and metalwork will benefit from his lectures, Mr. Larom said.

book, according to Mrs. Place. They include Bob Johnson and his brother Dick, Art Pritzl, Penn Stohr, Earl Vance, the story of salt bombing with “Slim” Phillips, Bob Maracich, Frank Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt DeMers, Jerry Verhelst, Warren Ellison, Bill Yaggi, Chet Derry, and many others.
